Correspondents Plan Karachi Coverage

By Connie Gomperts

When government leaders and officials gather this week for the SEATO conference in Karachi, the working press will be there to watch development of the Southeast Asia treaty organization.

A.M. Rosenthal, New Delhi correspondent for the New York Times, will file for his paper. The Karachi Times man, John B. Callahan, has been laid up, but if he recovers in time for the conference, he'll be around to help Rosenthal out, the Times reports.

Handling the SEATO meeting for the New York Herald Tribune will be Arch Parsons, Jr., roaming head of the Beirut bureau. He has been stationed in Cairo for the past few months.

A three-man team will be covering for United Press. John Hlavicek of the India bureau and James Berry, manager of the Karachi bureau, will be joined by Robert Brown, who covered the recent SEATO maneuvers off Thailand.

Associated Press will be represented

Bruno Shaw Nominated Elections To Be April 27

The nominating committee has presented a list of 11 candidates for the six offices to be filled in annual OPC elections in April and 12 nominations for the Board of Governors.

The nominations were unanimously approved by the committee.

Following recent changes in the club by-laws, two nominees were presented for each office except that of President where only one name, that of Bruno Shaw, was submitted.

Additional nominations of candidates for club offices or the Board of Governors may be made by petition up until March 12, the committee observed in submitting its slate of candidates.

The elections will be held at the annual general meeting on Friday April 27. This year balloting by mail will be permitted and is expected to give overseas members a larger voice in the election.

The nominations are shown on the adjoining panel.

The members of the nominating committee were: Egbert White, chairman; John Barkham, W.W. Chaplin, Tom Johnson, Murray Lewis, Kathleen McLaughlin, and Virginia Mizelle.

Nominations by petition can be by anyone securing 20 signatures of active members on the petition provided the petition is postmarked within 10 days of the effective mailing date of the Bulletin carrying the nominations. This means that petitions must be postmarked March 15 or earlier and must in any case be received at least ten days prior to the election. Petitions should be addressed to the Club Secretary (A. Wilfred May).

Berrigan Reports Bedlam In Bangkok

BANGKOK

Twenty-four U.S. correspondents including photographers covered the recent SEATO maneuvers in Thailand which included a marine landing and flights of latest type aircraft of SEATO members.

The correspondents were unanimous in reporting that the American Navy and Air Force had done an excellent job in providing facilities for those correspondents, largely from the Tokyo press corps, who accompanied these branches. However, it was agreed that actual coverage of the exercises was relatively easy compared to the difficulty of trying to meet Thailand officials other than information people.

Darrell Berrigan reports he saw Robert "Pepper" Martin, of U.S. News and World Report, Keyes Beech of the Chicago Sun-Times, Bob Alden of the New York Times, Dwight Martin of Time-Life, Dan Kurzman of McGraw-Hill, John Dominis and Bill Paine, also of Time-Life, Robert Brown of United Press, and Don Huth of the Associated Press.

Berrigan reports:

"There was some confusion before the games as to who the hypothetical enemy was, but the first Marine landing established the question without a doubt.

"The Marines touched ground. The correspondents and photographers rushed forward, cameras blazing. The Marines retreated, recovered and counter-attacked.

"The correspondents stood their ground a moment, then, as rifles, mgs, bazookas and bombs began exploding, they retreated in disorder and the SEATO forces had come through nobly. The reason the correspondents were defeated so quickly (although I must say they returned again and again despite the odds against them) is credited to their lack of leadership.

"One correspondent, for instance, shall remain nameless only because he is still living and famous because, ignoring the order to retreat, he sat with his back against a pill-box taking notes until, moved by the insistence of his guardian angel, he got up and walked away just before the charge went off that blew the pill box to pieces.

"After all this disturbance to our peace and quiet in Thailand, I am going back to bed. I am laying in a supply of Vitamin B tablets and do not want to be disturbed again for at least another month."

— Darrell Berrigan

Raymond of Times Gets Moscow Post

Jack Raymond of the New York Times has joined Welles Hagen in coverage of Moscow.

Raymond moved to Moscow from Belgrade, filling the vacancy left when Clifton Daniel returned to New York.

The Times was anxious to keep a two-man bureau in Moscow, making it possible to keep one man in the city all the time and leaving the other free for coverage in other parts of the Soviet Union.

Last fall he took a news trip through Rumania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Poland, countries which until then had not been cordial to the idea of admitting American correspondents.

FRANKFURT PRESS CENTER GETS FINAL "THIRTY"

Frankfurt, Germany -- Col. Robert V. Shinn of the Army public information division, has provided the final report on the Frankfurt press center which was closed recently after ten years of serving the foreign correspondents in that area.

Through the center, Shinn reports, funneled all news and feature items and pictures released by the Army PIO's in Europe to both the U.S. and European press. In addition, it is estimated that nearly 2,000 correspondents passed through the Center, he said.

During the early '40s and '50s, the center was a headquarters for a large segment of the U.S. press corps in Germany. With German sovereignty, many moved on to the West German capitol at Bonn.

Phase out of the center began shortly after last May 5, West German Sovereignty day, and it was closed at year's end with a reception attended by Gen. A. C. McAuliffe and a group of correspondents which included Dan DeLuca, Richard O'Regan and Bob Tuckman of the AP, Joe Grigg, Russ Jones and Don Shanor of the UP, Tom Agoston and Irwin Tress of INS, Jim Lucas of Scripps-Howard, Larry Rue of the Chicago Tribune, Waldo Drake of the LA Times, and Russ Braley of the New York Daily News.

ROSENTHAL ELECTED

Abe Rosenthal, New York Times correspondent in New Delhi, was recently elected president of the Foreign Correspondents Association in India. A Pravda correspondent was elected to the post of vice-president. This combination prompted one Indian newspaper to call the elections a fine example of the Geneva spirit.

"This is a bit hard to see," was Rosenthal's comment, "since I was nominated by an American and the Russian was nominated by a Russian."
